When We Do Harm, Medical Error and The Human Condition Danielle Ofri, MD, FACP

A Culture of Safety: Patient safety is a critical issue in medicine today. There is, rightly, a strong emphasis on systems approaches to improving medical care and decreasing error. However, medicine is fundamentally a human endeavor. Without attention to the human aspects of the medical enterprise—emotions, cognitive abilities, biases, communication—crucial aspects of patient safety will remain beyond our grasp.

Her newest book—“When We Do Harm: A Doctor Confronts Medical Error” is available now!

“One of the leading physician-authors of our time, Danielle Ofri masterfully diagnoses the reasons for our pervasive problem of medical errors. Beyond a systematic dissection that every patient can understand, she provides solutions for how to get healthcare on track.” - Professor Eric Topol, author of Deep Medicine

“What makes this book special is Ofri’s perceptive and compassionate nature; she sees her own patients as real people and is candid with readers about her concerns and vulnerabilities. . . .Thorough analysis of a challenging problem executed with a personal touch that makes it highly readable.” - Kirkus Reviews

Guidance for International Medical Graduates (IMGs)
Matching in Internal Medicine in 2021 Webinar

Monday, October 5, 2020 | 10:00 a.m. ET

The COVID-19 pandemic has caused disruptions to the normal residency application and Match processes, leaving IMGs applying in the 2021 cycle with many questions about how to optimally navigate this already anxiety-provoking and critical step in their medical career.

Sponsored by the ACP Council of Student Members and presented in conjunction with the Educational

Commission for Foreign Medical Graduates | Foundation for Advancement of International Medical Education and Research (ECFMG®|FAIMER®) and the Alliance for Academic Internal Medicine (AAIM), this panel discussion will combine perspectives from a key stakeholder and experienced residency program directors from a variety of U.S. training programs to discuss the impact of pandemic-related changes on the residency application and Match processes. The speakers will provide the best available advice for IMGs applying to internal medicine training programs in the United States.

Registrants who have not passed USMLE Step 2 CS should review:
