The NYACP Resident Committee and Well Being Task Force have joined forces to invite all Chapter Residents to an evening of Zoomchats to discuss how the COVID-19 experience has affected their perspective and the challenges faced and are still facing during this pandemic. The objective is to feel hopeful about the future and identify new skills that can be used to transform the practice of medicine. A secondary goal is to collect lessons learned and knowledge from this experience to share with interns this year and in years to come. The dialogues will be broken down into smaller chat room discussions - facilitated by Well Being Leaders and Chief Residents.

Member Feedback: Board Review Question of the Week

We're 6 months in on the Board Review Question of the week and more than 25% of members across NY State have participated. That's exceptional! Last week, we paused the review question in order to hear about your experience with this inaugural NYACP/MedQuest Program. Thank you for your participation and responses! We learned that it has been a valuable resource to test your knowledge. Your feedback also indicated some frequently asked questions. Thank you for bringing these to our attention! We have provided the answers below.

How valuable have the weekly questions been in testing your knowledge? (1 - Not at all, 5 - Extremely)

Where can I access the answers quickly? Just as with the live courses, an answer poll is shared with all participants.

The answers are collected over two days and distributed every Thursday in the following ways:

1. The NYACP IM Connected bi-weekly e-Newsletter (or a stand-alone email)
2. On our website: www.nyacp.org/boardquestions

Where can I find the previous answers? We will add the current month's answers as a link as was requested by many of you! They can also be found at www.nyacp.org/boardquestions

Why are there many specialty questions? MedQuest does an outstanding job by covering all subjects that are tested. Their Fischer Method ensures that you understand the testing concepts and have seen some version of the types of questions asked. The goal is to be relaxed and confident on test day!

What URL do you use? The question comes every Tuesday morning in an email sent by NYACP Executive Director, Heather Bennett via the application PropFuel. The question will have a PropFuel URL that is safe and secure!
