Academic Physicians

ACP is the largest medical specialty society in the world and offers lifelong learning and professional development resources along with a vast global network of colleagues. Benefits include a subscription to Annals of Internal Medicine and free or substantially discounted resources and teaching tools to help meet educational goals.

- Identify learning gaps and prepare your residents for the Boards with ACP's Internal Medicine In-Training Exam (IM-ITE) and Medical Knowledge Self-Assessment Program® (MKSAP®). The IM-ITE is the strongest-known predictor of ABIM Certification Examination performance, plus you can use the score reports to find common issues and address them in your curriculum. MKSAP is deeply discounted to members and residents, and the MKSAP Residency Tracker allows you to monitor the progress of your residents at both the program and individual level.
- Use many of ACP's resources to enhance your curriculum; there are a number of prepackaged curricula on topics ranging from high-value care to caring for the underserved. Plus, you can easily repurpose benefits like ACP JournalWise®, the clinical decision-support tool DynaMed®, and online point-of-care ultrasound modules for use in group discussions and other learning formats.
- Encourage your learners to participate in the ACP Abstracts Program and Doctor's Dilemma® competition in order to help them demonstrate scholarship and enhance their CVs.
- Provide resident career and well-being support by connecting your residents to IMpower, an ACP program offering nonclinical tools and resources to support residents during their training and catalyze their professional future.
- Enhance your personal learning through ACP's many opportunities to earn CME and MOC. Most are free to ACP members; those that aren't are available at a member discount.
- You and your learners will benefit from ACP's ongoing advocacy to improve the graduate medical education (GME) system and make a difference in the professional lives of our members and the health of our patients.

Join ACP today and gain access to all of these benefits and more.
